Brain of man greatly enlarged. Upon this piece one can follow the course of the nerve fibres in every part of the encephalic mass. This model, designed after dissections made upon brains hardened with chromic acid according to the directions of Dr. Luys, sums up the labor of the ancient & modern anatomists, that only does it enable one to see the form of each peculiarity remarked in the cerebrum, cerebellum, bulb and upper part of the spinal cord, but it places within the comprehension of all the mechanism by which impressions arrive at certain portions of the brain & by which the will is transmitted to each of our organs. This entirely new method of studying the brain opens a great career of discovery & observation to philosophers & physicians. $64.
